

Please leave the list the way it is. It has been sooo VERY VERY pleaseing to be able to enjoy some quiet time once I get home from work and not be Hassled and I do mean Hassled by telemarketers that have to meet a quota.

If the banking industry is so hard up to get the customer's back that they lost, then they should look hard into reforming, updateing and just overall improveing all areas of how they deal with their customer's. Maybe if they took the time to do that and realize that the public at large has needs, they would not have lost those customer's they are attempting to win back in the first place.
